Practicing physicians throughout the Texas Medical Center and from around the world participate in our continuing medical education programs, including many free online offerings.

Baylor College of Medicine is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC) to award masters and doctorate degrees. Questions about the accreditation of Baylor College of Medicine may be directed in writing to the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges at 1866 Southern Lane, Decatur, GA 30033-4097, by calling (404) 679-4500, or by using information available on SACSCOC's website (www.sacscoc.org).

The Commission should be contacted only if there is evidence that appears to support Baylor's significant non-compliance with a requirement or standard. To submit such evidence to SACSCOC, view Complaint Procedures Against SACSCOC or Its Accredited Institutions Policy Statement.

RESEARCH

Baylor College of Medicine received $683 million in total funding from more than 3,700 sponsored project awards in fiscal year 2025. This represents a 40% increase over 10 years.

In fiscal year 2025, the College ranked No. 23 among all U.S. medical schools for NIH funding, and No. 8 in the nation by the National Science Foundation for research expenditures in biological and biomedical sciences.

The scale of Baylor's research enterprise, the exceptional caliber of faculty we attract and the richness of biomedical research resources within the Texas Medical Center support creativity, innovation and discovery.

- Texas Children's Hospital
- The University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center

COMMUNITY

Baylor College of Medicine strives to improve health and education in Houston and beyond through integrated care, research and community outreach.

We deliver innovative healthcare via global initiatives, community and school-based clinics and programs for vulnerable populations. Our research drives new solutions for prevention, diagnosis, and treatment, and education programs empower students and teachers through school partnerships, B.S./M.D. pathways, online resources, and student support services. Baylor employees also give back by serving our internal and local communities, providing food to students through the on-campus food pantry called the Grocery Resource at Baylor (GRAB), and volunteering at community organizations. Together, these efforts reflect Baylor's commitment to healthier, stronger communities worldwide.

SUPPORT FROM THE COMMUNITY

Philanthropy remains a driving force behind Baylor College of Medicine's mission to push the boundaries of discovery, train the next generation of leaders in medicine and deliver exceptional patient care to Houston and communities around the world. In 2025, alongside our Board of Trustees, Board of Advisors and a network of alumni and volunteers, we reached transformative milestones – including celebrating Baylor's 125th anniversary and achieving the topping out of the new Lillie and Roy Cullen Tower, the future home of medical and health professions education.

Thanks to the generosity and vision of our supporters, Baylor secured $112.5 million through 6,700 new gifts and commitments and has raised $154 million to date for the Cullen Tower – momentum that is shaping tomorrow's medicine today.

MISSION

Baylor College of Medicine is a health sciences university that creates knowledge and applies science and discoveries to further education, healthcare and community service locally and globally.
